Boston Plant, 100 percent behind United Way

You often can't accomplish much in two weeks. Especially if you're trying to get people to part with money.

But 10 working days was all the time Digital's Boston Plant had to run their 1982 United Way Pacesetter campaign. Being a Pacesetter meant that Boston ran their campaign early to set an example for other companies. A late selection process cut into the normal month-long process. So site chairperson Arthur Bowes and his committee organized a campaign that included group and individual meetings and a well-planned promotional effort.

And it worked. The final pledge, which was late because the person was on vacation, gave Digital Boston 100 percent employee participation for the campaign. Boston's average annual gift per employee was $36. The 237 donors splinted their goal of $7,400 by more than $1,000 to collect a total of $8,457.

"We panicked at first," laughs Arthur Bowes, "then acted fast. I picked a committee, many of whom served on previous UW campaigns. At our first meeting we set an employee participation goal of 100 percent. We decided that the best way to reach it was through constant publicity."

To promote Boston's commitment to both the campaign and the role of Pacesetter, the committee printed tee-shirts reading DIGITAL and BOSTON 1982 PACESSETTER. They offered a limited amount for sales during pledge week and received 200 orders from the plant's 237 employees.

According to Bowes, "The United Way has always promoted the importance of contact and the human element regarding pledging. So during pledge week, committee members reached out to people. They'd talk one-on-ones, hold meetings--do whatever was necessary to make people want to give. When we handed out pledge cards, a lot of people filled them out on the spot."

All this activity culminated on August 24, "United Way Day." Boston Plant personnel filled the cafeteria to learn about the UW through speakers and films, and completed any remaining pledge cards.

Speakers for the day featured Henry Crouse, Digital's Key Executive for the campaign; Plant manager Ralph Gillespie; and a representative from the Hatie Cooper Center in Boston. Each related how the United Way had touched their lives in some way.

"I'm very proud of the campaign's results," Arthur adds. "Everyone was great--the committee, their managers and especially the people who work here. The United Way of Mass Bay honored us by making us a Pacesetter; with 100 percent participation, we more than lived up to their expectations."

Employee Stock Purchase price announced

The purchase price for the Employees Stock Purchase plan was announced as $63.75 on December 1. The Fair Market Value on June 1 was $74.75 and on November 30 the value was $102.25. The purchase price was based on the lower price less 15 percent.

Statements of Ownership and Stock Certificates will be mailed the first week of December to employees who participated in the June payment period. The rollover amount will appear on pay stubs the second week of December.

Employees who are participating in the December 1982 payment period will have their first deduction taken from their pay on Thurs., Dec. 2.

The Supplementary Contribution for the December payment period will be $63.75 and begin on July 5, the seventh week of the new payment period. More than 23,000 employees purchased over 340,000 shares of common stock.

To generate excitement their pacesetting United Way campaign, the Boston plant offered "limited edition" tee-shirts for sale during pledge week. They received 237 orders for 200 tee-shirts.

DCU to give members $250,000

Digital Credit Union (DCU) will give $250,000 to its members, according to an announcement by DCU general manager Richard D. Mangone. The money was voted by the board of directors at their October meeting and reflects the success of DCU in 1982.

Money will be distributed to both the borrowers and the savers who supported the credit union in the following way:

All loans with an interest rate over 15 percent will receive a 5 percent interest refund. If a member paid $1,000 in interest in 1982 they would get $50 deposited into their regular share account on December 31, 1982.

All savings accounts including clubs will earn a one percent bonus dividend for the fourth quarter. Dividends are compounded daily and paid quarterly. The current rate with the bonus point is 7.5 percent.

Both rates on the split rate Ultimate Checking account will earn the bonus one percent dividend. Members with deposits under $3,000 will earn 7.5 percent, compounded daily. When deposits go over $3,000 members will earn a rate higher than the money market rates. For example, the week of November 1st, according to the Donahue money market rate averages, the prevailing rate was 8.87 percent. DCU had a base rate of 9 percent plus the bonus dividend bringing the rate to 10.00 with an effective rate of 10.52 percent for the same period.

Not only will the IRA Plus account receive the one percent bonus, the base rate on the account has been increased from 90 percent of the 2½ year U.S. Treasury note rate to 100 percent of the same rate.

In addition, rates on new loans have been lowered. DCU is also considering additional services for the membership.

"Without the support of members, this year's success story would have been impossible," Mangone said. "It is only right that the membership be rewarded for the success they helped create."

What to do if a customer calls your number

Ideally a customer's only contact with Digital should be through the Sales organization. However, many choose to call the main number at headquarters or an individual directly. Corporate Customer Assistance was formed six years ago to help prospective and established customers when they call or write corporate headquarters. The staff is trained to assure customer satisfaction and good customer relations.

In the event you receive a call from a customer or prospective customer, be prepared to transfer the call to Customer Assistance on DTN 223-7161.

When you answer the phone you represent Digital. It's important to always be pleasant and interested in what the caller has to say. Once you determine that the caller is a possible customer, transfer the call to Customer Assistance.

To transfer a call, depress the switchhook once and wait for a dial tone. Dial the desired number - DTN 8-223-7161; the present call is temporarily on hold. When you get an answer announce the call transfer and hang up. If the line is busy depress the switchhook twice to get back to the caller. Give them the external number to call, 493-7161.

If the caller has been transferred a number of times and seems agitated, please get their name, company, location and phone number. Explain to them that you will have the appropriate person contact them as soon as possible. Then relay the information to Customer Assistance immediately.

Toys for Tots campaign begins

You can bring a moment of joy to a needy child during the holiday season. Simply spread your giving spirit a little further and give to the "Toys for Tots" campaign at Digital. The fifth annual drive, sponsored by Maynard Employee Activities Committee (MEAC), runs from Dec. 6 to Dec. 10.

Containers for the toys will be placed at the main entrance at the Mill, Parker Street, Powdermill Road, Concord, Acton and Stow.

Please give only new and unwrapped toys. The Marine Corps Reserves will collect the toys and categorize them by age suitability to distribute to local agencies in time for the holidays.

"With your support and assistance this year's campaign can ensure that underprivileged children will not go without a toy at Christmas," said Mary Thomas, Digital Toys for Tots chairperson. For more information, call Thelma Dumont on DTN 223-9414.

Put the giving spirit back in the holidays

The 1982 Holiday Project of Boston is asking employees to be part of the project's annual community effort to bring holiday songs, gifts and good cheer to people confined to hospitals and other institutions during the Christmas and Hanukkah season.

Through involvement in the 11-year-old project, volunteers discover how rewarding it is to give. In this case, what volunteers give is their time and cheer by visiting people who might otherwise be alone during the holidays.

The not-for-profit, Holiday Project consists of an executive committee and volunteers throughout the country. Currently positions are still available for a company representative, coordinating visits to institutions and developing special projects.

Volunteers are also needed to make deliveries and visits on Christmas and Hanukkah.

Employees interested in leading a Holiday Project group at Digital, or in being part of the visit should call Ginny Pickett, Community Enrollment representative on 617-498-9876 or call Nancy Bancroft on DTN 273-3218.

Aviation Services offers new services

Aviation Services has revised its flight schedule to run more than one helicopter on some of their scheduled flights during peak demand times. Although the number of scheduled flights has been reduced, employees will almost always be guaranteed a seat on the flights. According to Tom Chestnut, Aviation Services chief pilot, the changes were made after a study of the flight loads indicated most people wanted reservations at the same times. "We feel if we offer more seats during these times we can better serve employees, vendors and customers. The flights that were eliminated from the schedule were low demand and will help us be more cost effective," Tom said.

To add to the effectiveness of service, flights will be more direct and the schedule is now coordinated with shuttle service. On the Maynard-Merrimack flight, should a helicopter not depart, shuttle vans will be provided. Also, helicopters will now pick up and drop off in Hudson, Mass. Employees should request a Hudson landing or parture when they make their reservations.

Time for Marlboro Technical Seminar changed

The Dec. 8 Marlboro Technical Seminar, Supercomputers from a User's Perspective by Bill Buzbee from Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory, has been changed to 2 p.m. It originally was planned for 3 p.m. It will be held in the DEC 10-20 conference room, MR01.

Word processing reference notebook available

Experienced internal users as well as those thinking of ordering Word Processing equipment will find a wealth of useful information in the new Word Processing Reference Notebook. This notebook is published by the Internal Office Systems Support (IOSS) group which is part of the Internal Software Services (ISWS) District.

Those planning to order new systems will be interested in the section entitled Site Preparation, Resources and References and Word Processing Equipment. These sections spell out the specific physical requirements, ordering procedures and the equipment necessary to automate your office. They also describe the general characteristics and specific components of various systems that will assist you in determining the equipment that will best meet your departmental needs.

If you are already using a word processor, you will be most interested in the following sections: Word Processing Software, Supplies, Equipment Maintenance, Word Processing Applications, Communications and Information Security. In addition, the Equipment section contains information on how to upgrade your word processor.

The Word Processing Reference Notebook is a handy reference guide that answers most questions about word processors.

If your cost center has subscribed to an IOSS Service Contract, you will be receiving your copy in the mail. Otherwise, you may order your copy for a nominal fee directly from IOSS by calling DTN 223-4034.

Phillips Academy Scholarships available for children of employees

Digital employee dependents are now eligible to receive scholarships covering tuition and room and board for the summer session at Phillips Academy in Andover.

Eight hundred and fifty students are chosen by Phillips each year to attend this six-week session. Students between 10th and 11th, and 11th and 12th grades are eligible to apply. Eighteen subject hours are required and a wide range of major and minor courses are offered.

A booklet and application describing the session will be available by December 10. Interested employees should send a memo listing their home address to Donna Spencer, PKO3-2/K36. The application deadline is March 1, 1983.

Applications should be submitted as soon as possible after January 1.

Digital learns of 'Olympics of the Mind'

Chicago Tribune columnist Vernon Jarrett (left) recently visited Digital to talk about "Olympics of the Mind," a national program which promotes the importance of arts and academics to black youths. Laura Morris, Corporate Urban and Social Affairs consultant (right), and Al Mullin, vice president, Corporate Relations, greet Vernon.

Digital played host to Chicago Tribune columnist Vernon Jarrett as he toured Digital sites and met with managers from many organizations to discuss possible involvement in the NAACP's ACT-SO "Olympics of the Mind." ACT-SO is the acronym for Afro-Academic, Cultural, Technological and Scientific Olympics, the major vehicle of the NAACP's national drive to create the enthusiasm for achievement in the classroom.

Vernon praised the program as "one of the most inspiring and important programs for youths in the country. We must prove to our youths that there are rewards, recognition, fame and even monetary returns for those who pay their dues in and out of the classroom," he said. The ultimate goals of ACT-SO is to create a climate in black communities in which it is popular to be creative, an academic achiever or a scholar.

Laura Morris, Corporate Urban and Social Affairs consultant, brought Vernon to Digital with the hope of gaining support for the program. "It's a very positive way of relating to the community. As a relatively new industry, its useful to be part of a program that can help youths understand technology. They may some day become potential new hires or customers," Laura explained.

Employees that would like to volunteer to be business role models for the youths, judges at the local levels or to support the regional or national competition should contact Laura on DTN 223-2179.

DECset makes successful launch

Favorable comments from noted publishing systems consultant John Seybold underscored the successful launch of DECset v.2. The Publishing & Broadcast Industries Group's (PBI) new product was announced at Graph Expo East '82 in Philadelphia in October.

John Seybold, editor of the worldwide industry newsletter The Seybold Report on Publishing Systems, hailed DECset v.2 (in the October 25, 1982 issue) as:

"a very attractive product for the in-plant market originally targeted, as well as for financial, database and demand-printing applications.

"We're glad to say," he continues, "that the new package... has... powerful composition and pagination features... Another major plus is the ability to drive the Xerox 9700 laser printer.

"DECset routines," he adds, "having to do with all of the utilities, communications options, elaborate conversion programs and the like, are still very much an important part of the total DECset offering.

"All things considered," concludes John, "...DEC is still very much in the game."

"We're delighted with the write-up," says PBI Marketing Communications manager Lee Katz. "The introduction of DECset v.2 at Graph Expo was especially important to us because it marked Digital's formal entry into the in-plant and commercial typeset market."

Approximately 25,000 attended the four-day trade show, visiting the booths of over 250 exhibiting companies, including a continually-crowded Digital showcase.

"Exposure to this important market gave us recognition and made the show a major

Learn to cope with depression

The holiday season is upon us. A time for lighthearted spirit, gaiety, social and family gatherings and people coming together, giving and sharing.

For some, however, the holiday period has another side. For people struggling with separation or divorce, the loss of a loved one, financial problems, work pressures or other personal problems, this time can be especially difficult. Rather than feeling joyous and happy, some people are troubled with feelings of loneliness, isolation, anxiety and depression.

Attend the Maynard Area Employee Assistance Program's seminar and learn to cope with holiday depression. The seminars run from 12 noon to 1 p.m. Feel free to bring your lunch.

Digital sponsors Channel Two specials

As part of Digital's underwriting support for Channel 2 Evening at Pops, the Company will be recognized as the sponsor of "Christmas at Pops."

Digital will have audio/visual credits as the sole corporate underwriter. The credits will read:

"Brought to you by a grant from Digital Equipment Corporation, providing a wide range of computers for office automation, small business management and professional personal computing..."

Channel 2 estimates that approximately 4 to 5 million people across the U.S. will view the show.

"Christmas at Pops" will air Thursday, December 23, at 9 p.m. and be repeated on Saturday, December 25, at 9 p.m. It will be part of the 1982 "Evening at Pops" series. Through Corporate Contributions, Digital has underwritten "Evening at Pops" for the past two years.

success," says DECset Marketing manager Dick Powell. "The 100 qualified customer leads we gained and the write-up by John Seybold--in a publication read by the most important decision makers in the composition and typeset world--attest to this.
