GILBOY'S GOATS

On Prospect Height Drub Collins' Goats in Bitter Fight

I went to Marlboro, Saturday, to see that baseball game between them Highland City chaps and Gilroy's stars of fame; I'd never seen a baseball game, didn't know what one was like, altho I'd often heard about a foul ball an' a strike. My wife she was agin it an' said it wuz a skin, an' if I went them Marlboro sports wud rob me of my tin; I up and told her then and there I knew a thing or two, and if they got the best of me they'd have to go a few. There ain't no gold-brick me b'gosh, they'll hev to get up early too, to beat yer uncle Josh.

Now, Ledgard's team and Collins' men had met an' had a scrap, with Gilroy neutral, but prepared to wipe both off the map; so when this Collins feller from his fort up on the hill, defied the Maynard warrior and said that he cud kill, any pitcher that Gilroy cud bring up to the Prospect height, the war was on, the dogs let loose and both prepared to fight.

"War was on"

"Gil" called in his reservists from all the country round, determined to whip Collins' men and drub them good and sound; while Collins also reinforced to ward off "Gil's" attack, with Duffey on the firing line, eight Uhlans at his back. An' that's the way the war began and caused the fur to fly, the way "Gil's" men to victory went, and Collins men to die.

At three o'clock "Gil's" regiment, a brass band at its head, marched on the field of battle, and 'twas "Gil" himself that led, an' soon he had that Highland team like the troops that fit at Liege, annihilated, trampled on an' in a state of siege. McLaughlin, once of Harvard, where he won himself renown, was put in as sharpshooter for to mow them Marlboros down, an' the way he hit the targets made them Maynard fellers shout, fer fast as Marlboro's men came up the Maynards put 'em out. Them Marlboro fans they sed as how McLaughlin wuz no good, b'gosh he cut them fellers down like he was sawin' wood.

The first round didn't bring no blood, or score for either side, but next time up "Gil's" men begun to tan the Marlboros hide, an' when the round was over an' summed up on the slate, 'twas seen that three of "Gilly's" men had cum across the plate; three singles an' a triple, a pass an' double steal, had give the Marlboros wobbles an' a sickly sort of feel. The Maynard fans went crazy, I tell you it wuz fine, to see as menny men as that a commin' across the line.

An' then a few more rounds wuz fought but neither side cud gain, but in the sixth that Wilder chap did sure give "Gil" a pain. For Marlboro, Duffey singled, and safely got to first, which caused them Marlboro fans to yell "McLaughlin's goin' to burst; O'Neil, the next man drove the ball 'tween short and second bag, an' Duffey runnin' down was out, just like he's playing tag. G. Holt then stepped up to the plate, upon his hands did spit, he banged away with all his might, an' made a two-base hit. Carl Persons, then, quite innocent, got hit right in the rib, he sed 'twas not on purpose but I think he told a fib. Then trusty Captain Topham gave the ball a mighty whack, it fell into the doctor's hands, who promptly threw it back. Three Marlboro men were on the bags an' then begun sum fun, as Flaherty fired in the ball to try and stop a run. It fell right in "Brick" Wilder's hands, an' also fell right out, O'Neil was safe at home an' then the Marlboro fans did shout. "Brick" seized the ball and made a throw far wilder than his name, it sailed 'way out in center field, an' in two more runs came. Then "Gil" waxed angry an' declared such work gave him fatigue, 'twas fit fer only reubens in sum way back bushier league, things sure looked bad for Maynard and "Gil" wuz feelin' blue, but Sing went out from four to three, the best that he cud do.

The Maynards still wuz one ahead, with three more rounds to fight, when "Gil" sed "if you lose this game you'll all walk home tonight." He jawed and jawed, and rubbed it in until they all got mad, an' what they did from that time on wuz really, really sad. They lit upon that Duffey chap, gave him such awful whacks, that Collins cried "go to your stall," so Duffey got the axe.

"Duffey got the Axe"

McLaughlin made a triple, his hitting wuz immense, but Flaherty improved it when he put one o'er the fence. When the seventh round wuz over them Maynards had scored five, an' Collins sed "please pinch me 'til I see if I'm alive; a lot of Maynard chickens in the stand got up and squealed, while Marlboro stood in mournin' with its wounded on the field. Bob Gill was called to stem the tide, alas! it wuz too late, for all the men behind him wuz in a sorry state; but "Gilly's" men to cheer them up and make them feel less sore, allowed them in the final round to make another score. An' when the fight wuz over and they'd mopped up all the gore, 'twas seen the Maynards had the day, they'd won it 10 to 4.

The Maynards claimed another run wuz due them in the race, but the ump sed Flaherty wuz out, becuz he didn't touch a base. Then "Gilly's" face grew fairly red, and throwing out his chest, he yelled out to the umpire "the game I here protest." "Gil" sed "I'm goin' to have that run," the ump he wouldn't yield, the Marlboro crowd began to shout "take Gilroy off the field;" but "Gil" he stood and argued an' sed I know the rule, he talked and talked an' acted just as stubborn as a mule.

"Stubborn as a Mule"

The Marlboro men, disheartened, demoralized and weak, demanded that their chieftain an armistice should seek; and then wuz signed a treaty that caused the war to cease, at the latest Hague tribunal, Rock's famous Bar of Peace.

Below is given a chart showing the progress of the two armies during the battle:

MAYNARD

TUFTS AT MAYNARD

Republican Senatorial Candidate Con-ident of Success

On Tuesday evening Nathan A. Tufts of Waltham, Republican candidate for senator, from the 5th Middlesex senatorial district, was entertained by the Republican town committee at a smoke talk at which the Republican voters of the town were given an opportunity to meet Mr. Tufts and hear what he had to say for himself. Adelbert Messer of Concord was also present to meet his old friends and supporters.

The meeting was opened by Gavin Taylor, chairman of the Republican town committee, who made a short but interesting speech, in the course of which he said, "I am willing to put my time against any others to work for the Republican party, for it is the party of progress, and I believe that in every state where it predominates that state is in the fore front, and furthermore, I believe that it has built up the business of the country if not of the world. The only way the Republican party can hope to gain and carry out its principles is by becoming united. Some have gone away from our party and call themselves Progressives, but this fall we are going to win back what we have lost. We expect the rank and file of them to come back with us."

"This meeting is for the purpose of giving Mr. Tufts an opportunity to meet the people of Maynard. I know he is a man having a good record. He has lived in Waltham ten years, three of which he has held office in the city, and for five years has been a representative in the House of Representatives."

At the close of these remarks Mr. Taylor introduced Mr. Tufts who delivered a very interesting address, in which he explained his position, his hopes and aspirations and then asked the people of Maynard to give him their support. In the course of his address he said:

"Mr. Chairman and Maynard Friends: "It is a pleasure to meet you and to talk of the coming campaign. I am exceedingly glad to come to the town of Maynard, and the pleasure I find in it is in meeting old friends and making new. I hope all will take their coats off and go to work. The situation this fall is this, this district has for six or seven years out of eight or nine been democratic, by reason of circumstances over which we have no control. I believe I am going to redeem the district."

"In Marlboro I find a strong feeling that the Republican party should be re-instated in power. It has been the experience of all of you that that Republican rule has been one of prosperity. It is also true that Democratic rule is coincident with bad times. I congratulate you here in Maynard upon your prosperity. I do not believe there is another town east of the Mississippi so prosperous. The Waltham Watch company has turned off over 700 employees. This is a very bad period of adversity. The watch business is the principal business of Waltham. The cotton business is passing through the very worst period in its history, and that is the oldest industry in the city."

"The Democratic party has not made good. The Republican party is the one that makes prosperity. In the last few years conditions have been bad. People have left the party and have formed a new party but the great majority are coming back because they recognize that the boss rule which they objected to in their own party was but leadership."

"The Progressive party has made mistakes. The Republican party is the one best calculated to hold the reins of government, and that is the feeling wide-spread over the country and Middlesex county. My nomination papers were signed by fifty Democrats. This is significant. I find many Progressives who are going to support the Republican party. I am going to fight up to election day and I believe we can win back this district with an overwhelming majority and with little opposition."

"The Progressive candidate is a man from Marlboro I do not know, and it will serve our purpose better than it were there none at all. I say to you that from observations in the district and state we are going to have some good years. Work together and unite, one and all, to bring back Progressives who have left the party. Show up the Democrats who have failed to keep their promise and the rest will be easy."

"At Hudson the other night, the chairman of the town committee wrote me, 'to bring along a good speaker, I have no one to discuss the issues.' "In 1910 Governor Foss issued to reduce the cost of living, the state tax, etc. Roger Sherman Hoar promised to reduce the cost of living. "It is not necessary for me to tell you that I have had the pleasure of serving on the committee of ways and means. In four years your state taxes have about doubled. The city of Waltham pays $25,000 more than four years ago, and this is true in every other city and town in the state. I do not mean to tell you that taxes or wages should never be raised, but I do tell you that it has been significant in the years of Democratic rule. There has been a raise in wages in high paid officials, in men drawing $8,000 to $9,000 per year. New jobs have been found for many. By Democratic votes in the house they made it possible for members of the house to be appointed to these positions, an act which the Republicans have objected to."

"The chief issue is good business. Do you want to send a man who will transact business as you would like to have our business transacted. Find out for yourself if I am that person; if I have in the five years that I have been in the house voted upon any wildcat schemes for the purpose of getting votes; whether or not it was not against my vote, as a member of the commission that $1,000,000 was expended."

"Ask your Mr. Batley whom I met in the legislature several years ago, your Progressive candidate, Mr. McCleary, ask him if I am such a man, if I have been underhanded in any way or that I have stood up and fought for the square deal, economy and justice. If you find that I am that kind of a man I want your support."

"Unfortunately politicians and officeholders are more or less disrepute. From my point of view it is an honor to be a member of that body. I come asking because I want to go. It elected I will do the best I can to run that business as you want your business run. That is the only pledge I can make. I am not going to promise the utopias which our Democratic friends promise. It is an easy thing to promise when on the outside. I believe your standard is my standard. If you want a man who will vote on every proposition according to his honest belief, that is all I can promise. You do not take enough interest in your public servants to find out what they are doing. In order to increase the efficiency and secure the best men, watch their course in the house and senate."

"Let every man register and vote. The reason better and more competent men are not secured for the legislature is that so many vote because the candidate is a good fellow. How else can we account for it. There is no legislative body but what there are in it men to whom you would not entrust your private affairs, then why should we entrust to them the expenditure of $4,000,000 or $5,000,000."

"The duty of the legislator is to pick out from the 3000 bills those which are needed and throw away those which are not needed. To cut out the bad and let in the good is the chief duty of the representative and the senator."

"I want to tell you that the outlook is exceedingly good and we are going to win. I want you to hand in your vote a rebuke to the Democratic party. You know that the cost of living is high and that they cannot reduce it. None of us have control over that. What we can do is to keep down our state and town taxes. It is to bring this about that I appeal to you for your support. They have opened up avenues to the spoils system. I have only to tell you that national expenditures are $27,000,000 greater this year than before. They have bought $4000 automobiles for Champ Clark and others. I am not asking simply for my support but the support of the candidate for the house. I have nothing to say about the candidates in other parties. They have not the power to control and are given to extravagance, and I ask you, one and all, to do all you can to return the Republican party to power. If elected I will do the best I can for all of you, and represent the whole district to the best of my ability."

"During five years service in the house I was not absent a day, except two weeks I was in the hospital. Investigate my political life. Politics is like foot ball. If you have not the eleven good working men you get nothing. I close by thanking you very much for coming here and listening. I am going to win and I am going to fight until after election day. I want your support and hope the town of Maynard will give me its support."

Chairman Taylor made a few remarks and introduced State Committeeman Adelbert Messer of Concord who made a very good speech in which he outlined the work of the Republican party, and expressed hopes of its return to former power. He closed amid great applause.

At the close of the meeting a collation was served consisting of ice cream and cake. Cigars were passed around.

Union Midsummer Greetings

The Methodist Episcopal and Congregational churches will hold union services in the Congregational meeting house, Maynard, on Sunday at 10.45 a. m., the preacher being Rev. A. M. Osgood, pastor of the Methodist church. The theme will be "God's way, nothing more, nothing less," illustrated by the life of Moses, for everyday life.

The union open air meeting on the grounds of the Methodist church at 6 p. m. will be in charge of Emanuel Taylor, local preacher, and will be addressed by the pastor, and other speakers.

On Sunday evening last, at the open air service, brief addresses were made by John Owens of Leominster, the pastor and six members of the official board, viz: Emanuel Taylor, L. D.
