MS-Windows course now available

Learning MS-Windows in a PCSA/VAXmate Environment
Part No. EY-8265E-PR

This self-paced, text-based course is designed for users of the VAXmate, Digital's desktop workstation. As a networked system, the VAXmate provides direct access to many computer resources through any VAX server. MS-Windows lets users take advantage of these resources. PCSA is an acronym for personal computer system architecture.

The course focuses on practical demonstrations of several MS-Windows applications, such as: MS-Notepad, MS-Clipboard, MS-Paint, VT220 terminal emulator, and Control Panel. A course that can be used in the PC environment is also available.

Digital employees may order these text-based courses through a charge to cost centers by sending a memo to Educational Services' Order Processing group in Billerica, Mass. Address VAXmail memos to EDSVAX::MAILPO and DECmail memos to MAILPO @BKO.

Include your name, badge number, cost center, full facility address including mail-stop, the part number, title, and quantity.

Dennis Simonaitis wins Corporate Challenge World Championships

Dennis Simonaitis, Customer Service representative at the Customer Returns Center in Woburn, has won the prestigious Manufacturer's Hanover Corporate Challenge World Championships in New York City. Dennis covered the 3.5 mile course in a time of 16 minutes, 17 seconds to lead a field of more than 2,000 corporate runners from 16 cities around the world.

Runners competing in this event represented the fastest of more than 80,000 corporate runners who had competed in regional events throughout the year. Dennis qualified for the finals by winning the Boston Manufacturer's Hanover Race last July.

The Digital men's team, which won the Boston men's title, finished fourth out of 18 teams. All of the Digital runners finished in the top 85. Competing for Digital on the men's team in addition to Dennis were: Kevin Larue (HLO), 17:08; Lance Burgess (MKO), 17:16; Roger Nasatka (WMO), 18:04; and Bruce Labonte (WMO), 18:08.

Dennis, Kevin, Roger and Bruce and other Digital runners will compete in the U.S. Corporate Marathon Championships on Jan. 17 in Houston. Dennis, who will be running his first marathon, will try to qualify for the U.S. Olympic Marathon Trials by running faster than two hours, 20 minutes. ■

Deadlines for 'Digital This Week'

Deadlines for "Digital This Week" have been established to help employees plan events and publicity around certain editions of the paper. Deadlines do not pertain to Marketplace, which is first come, first served. The next three issues and deadlines for DTW:

Jan. 11 issue — Dec. 30 deadline

Jan. 25 issue — Jan. 13 deadline

Feb. 8 issue — Jan. 27 deadline. ■

IDECUS issues 'Call for Participation'

Internal DECUS has distributed the "Call for Participation," an invitation to Digital employees to take part in the spring '88 symposium by sharing their projects, experiences and systems knowledge. The deadline for submissions is Friday, Jan. 15.

IDECUS symposia provide users with information about Digital's engineering directions, products, and services, as well as a forum in which to discuss professional issues. Symposia also highlight advances and directions within the information systems discipline.

Employees may choose either of two formats for their presentations: a single session on a particular topic; or a focus series, which provides in-depth presentations on a technology, program, product, service, or business opportunity.

Internal groups may participate in the exhibit hall by demonstrating new software packages, applications, systems, or services.

The submission forms and more detailed information on how to participate at the spring symposium are available online from the IDECUS VTX infobase. To access IDECUS, type VTX IDECUS at the $ (dollar sign) prompt, or select IDECUS from the Corporate VTX Library menu (keyword IDECUS).

The symposium location and schedule will be announced in the IDECUS VTX infobase and other media as soon as details are available. ■

1987-88 flu season update

(The following article was prepared by Health Services.)

You felt fine at noon, but by 3 p.m. your head is throbbing and your muscles ache. By bedtime, you're running a temperature and your throat is so sore you can barely swallow. Is it the flu, or is it just a bad cold?

It's probably the flu. Flu, or influenza, is a viral infection of the upper respiratory tract which can be distinguished from the common cold by its symptoms. It starts abruptly, frequently with high fever, a dry cough, headache, muscle pain, and a generally unwell feeling. Most people recover completely within a week or two.

Flu occurs worldwide during the winter months. Widespread outbreaks of flu usually begin in December in the United States, reach a peak in January and February, and may continue into the spring. This winter, it's expected that flu strains will be closely related to Type A/Taiwan, Type A/Leningrad, and Type B/Ann Arbor.

Why are so many people stricken with influenza in the winter? As temperatures drop, people stay inside more, increasing their risk of being exposed to viruses. In addition, cold weather dries out the mucuous membranes, especially in the nose and throat, making them more susceptible to infection.

A bout with the flu can lower resistance to other diseases, especially certain bacterial infections and pneumonia. For that reason, the U.S. Public Health Service recommends flu vaccines for high-risk individuals: adults and children with chronic lung, heart, or kidney disease, diabetes mellitus, severe anemia, or inadequate immune systems, and for everyone 65 years of age or older. The USPHS also advises the vaccine for families and household contacts of people in the high-risk group. People who are highly allergic to eggs and those with acute febrile illnesses should not be vaccinated.

Although the current influenza vaccine often contains one or more antigens used in previous years, immunity declines in the year following vaccination. For maximum protection against the flu, those who received the 1986-87 vaccine should be re-vaccinated this year. Digital's Health Services departments don't give flu vaccines. But Health Services urges employees who are in one of the high-risk groups to contact their physician about receiving a flu shot.

Bed rest, plenty of fluids, and analgesics such as aspirin and acetaminophen will help relieve flu symptoms. For more information about the flu, contact your local Health Services office, or your health care provider. ■

Greenville, S.C., new R&D home of Printed Wiring Board Manufacturing process

Construction is underway in Greenville, S.C., for Digital's Printed Wiring Board Manufacturing Process Research and Development Center. The center will serve as a state-of-the-art showcase for the manufacturing process development and production of printed wiring boards.

Printed wiring boards connect a series of components in computer systems. The term "printed" is derived from the process used to make the conductive pattern.

"This facility will be the world hub for all of Digital's manufacturing work in the research and development of printed circuit boards," says John Caulfield, Greenville site manager. "The facility will enhance our competitive advantage in manufacturing, and assist us in reaching our customer satisfaction goals."

The R&D Center will develop processes and strategies to ensure that future new products can be built using state-of-the-art technology. Says John, "We'll also work with vendors who supply specific pieces of equipment to develop capabilities that can't be bought 'off the shelf' today."

Rod Schmidt, group manager of the Printed Wiring Board organization in Westford, adds that the new facility will improve the company's time-to-market competitiveness. "When you're developing and introducing high-tech manufacturing processes, it's absolutely critical to combine the development of the process with the volume manufacturing of the product," he says. "Centralizing our development and manufacturing resources will help us to be just that much more efficient."

The Greenville plant, a 200,000-square-foot facility, currently employs about 950 people. The research center will add about 100,000 square feet, along with another 200 highly skilled jobs in the printed circuit industry. The project is expected to be completed in early 1989. ■

Next episode of 'Infinite Voyage' airs Jan. 6

Episode two of the Digital-sponsored science discovery series, "The Infinite Voyage" will be broadcast on Public Broadcasting Service stations on Wednesday, Jan. 6, at 8 p.m. It will be rebroadcast on Monday, Jan. 11, at 8 p.m. on WCVB-TV, Channel 5.

Titled "To the Edge of the Earth," the program examines life in earth's remote regions. It visits Tibet, where a tribe of nomads has adapted to living at 17,000 feet above sea level; the Costa Rican rain forest; the tundra of the Far North; and an island off the coast of Hawaii, which is being studied as it forms. ■

Revised W-2 form more detailed

Each year, the Corporate Payroll Department receives hundreds of questions concerning employee W-2 forms. The 1987 W-2 form has been redesigned to provide additional information that will help answer most of these questions.

For example, the revised form will break out forms of compensation such as non-cash prizes and awards, relocation compensation, and miscellaneous forms of compensation such as long-term disability payments received. And finally, a more detailed Box 10 reconciles an employee's year-to-date adjusted gross earnings plus additional compensation not recorded on the final pay stub to total wages and other compensation recorded in Box 10.

1987 W-2 forms will be mailed in mid-January. Employees should carefully review the form as soon as they receive it in the mail. Any questions should be directed to the W-2 Hotline, DTN 223-5456, or (617) 493-5456. ■
